SECRET TESTING OF UFO'S IN NEVADA Alarming Report By Top Scientist

Alien starships are being tested at a maximum security government base in Nevada, says Dr Bob Lazar, a top scientist. Between May and August 1989, Dr Lazar made several broadcasts stating that he was a physicist with higher degrees from MIT who had been recruited to work on an above top-secret project in Area 51, a government base at Groom Lake, 125 miles north of Las Vegas, where he underwent a highly intimidating security check, before being given a series of no less than 121 briefings to enable him to understand what he was to work on.

Dr Lazar stated that after obtaining his clearance he was assigned to backengineer an anti-matter generator operated by an element numbered 115 in the periodic table. He was flabbergasted, since such an element does not exist on Earth, where we have progressed no further than element 106. These heavy elements are extremely expensive to produce, even a few micrograms of them requiring a tremendous expenditure of time and energy. They also have very short half-lives, of mere nanoseconds. However, physicists speculate that up around element 113 the elements begin to stabilise again. Dr Lazar was told that 500 lbs of element 115 existed at the S4 division of Area 51 base!

Since the conversion of matter to anti-matter is 100% efficient, as compared with about 4/5ths of 1% in a fission or fusion reaction, a kilo of 115 has the explosive power of 47 x 10-megaton hydrogen bombs, ie 470 million tons of TNT. Thus only 10 grams of this element would be enough to destroy a large city! This military potential alone could account for the security of the project. Element 115, inserted into the antimatter generator, a demi-sphere the size of a basketball, produced anti-matter when bombarded by protons. This generated millions of volts of electricity as well as a gravity-wave which could distort space, stop time, and bend light. A candle placed in this wave, Dr Lazar alleged, would burn indefinitely. His astonishment turned to stupefaction when he was told that the gravity-wave thus generated was used to propel a flying disc across the universe.

He was shown nine of the discs, of different shapes and sizes, lined up in a camouflaged hangar and witnessed the testing of one of them, which rose silently from the ground on its field propulsion system. He eventually became so perturbed over what he had witnessed that he broke security and contacted a group of prominent citizens in Las Vegas, informing them that a test was scheduled for a particular night, inviting them to film it from outside the base. This they did, but unfortunately the viewing party was detected by a security patrol. Anonymous death threats were made against both him and his wife, and shots were fired into his car on a freeway. Realising he was in danger of losing his life, Dr Lazar went public, inviting a Japanese TV station to send a team over to film another testing of the disc. Whilst being adamant that he is telling the truth,

Dr Lazar has passed several lie-detector tests, been tested psychologically and finally pronounced normal and subjected to hypnosis.

Extensive investigation has so far failed to shake his astonishing story.

He insists that neither element 115 nor the anti-matter generator could possibly have been produced on this planet. And the seating in the discs, he says, was not large enough for the average human adult.

Dr Lazar's story is corroborated by films of the testing, to which there are numerous witnesses. Spectrographic analysis reveals that there was something very unusual indeed in the air over Area 51.

In the meantime we can only speculate as to where the disc ultimately originated and what the US government gave, and to whom - in exchange for this unearthly technology.
